Fun Free factoids from Dr. Knowitall

Some of these will blow your mind sorry. Maybe install ear corks now to protect the rug....

1. How many dinosaur remains or partial remains, about, have been found in La Brea Tar Pits? To date.
2. How did Columbus primarily contend with crew who believed in a flat earth, that they would fall off?
3. About, what was the population of America when Columbus arrived?
4. At its lowest flow, how many gallons in thousands of the Colorado River empty into the Gulf of California aka Sea of Cortes'?

answers

1. No dinosaurs were found in in LaBrea Tar Pits ever, dinosaurs predate Los Angeles area being a dry land by zillions of years. The exceptional collection at Exposition Park museum is from someplace else.
2. No one believed the world was flat that is a made-up modern day joke or story like science fiction. The earth's curvature is readily noticeable by anyone in many situations. For instance If you cross the Ponchartrain Bridge today you cannot see either side for the on-third center trip then the tops of things start appearing. Did they think there was an elevator on the arriving side raising stuff? No. A 6' man on the shore can only see about 2-3 miles the lower parts of objects opposite shore. The nearly correct size of spherical Earth was calculated 5 centuries BC per data found but no doubt persons knew about this phenom thousands of years before if they cared - mostly mariners.
3. The population of America at Columbus arrival was (estimates as high as) 112 million. Obviously not all walked from across the ice from Asia eastern North American natives are very European in appearance. Europeans then killed (and diseases) about 90% of them. It can be seen the Earth "Little Ice Age" then occurred a global weather change thought by many now to have been caused by the huge reduction of population then a much smaller world population . In some cases new diseases came to Europeans such as you-know with more deaths. You can see a huge huge display of gold from this one place is Toledo, Spain, recommended. .

I believe Columbus at first thought India extended this Far East or what? Confused but he had a contract to reach India, somehow our natives for a long time called Indians. And he did not fool the Queen although granted a high level rank Admiral rank he did not receive royalties from a contract to reach India. But he certainly knew of the world size, just not of America being in the way..

4. There are so many US users of the water in many months nothing flows out of the Colorado River just some mud.

If you have amazing facts let me know for next time. Dr. Knowitall.
